

Kim Yabsley

Director of Stratcomm

As a leading consultant in the field of organisational development (with specialist expertise in resilience and culture change), Kim has helped many organisations ‘future proof’ themselves through the development and implementation of strategic frameworks to manage change and develop resilient workforces.

Kim has significant experience in various communications, organisational development and strategy roles across the public and private sectors and has assisted clients to identify and understand organisational gaps, develop tools to address these gaps and facilitate the implementation of tools to ensure sustained change in the workplace, measurable through business outcomes.